Growing a "Green" Lawn

The National Coalition for Pesticide Free Lawns estimates that lawns take up 30 to 40 million acres in the United States. To maintain them in the most environmentally friendly way, it recommends these steps:

1. Don't use pesticides. These are toxic to birds and their food supply, not to mention children and pets.
2. Use a manual mower or opt for a mulching mower so that clippings can return nutrients to the soil.
3. Mow high, leaving 1.5 to 3.5 inches of grass. Higher grass requires fewer mowings and discourages weeds.

FREE PIZZA!

Each month we'll give you a new trivia question. Bring in your entry, or fill one out while you are here. The first one drawn at the end of the month with the correct answers will win a FREE 14" Pizza valued up to $15.99. Here is this month's trivia question:

The Real Buzz

About Honey

Next time you make a cup of tea and drizzle a little honey in it, take a moment to consider some near-miraculous facts about that “yellow gold,” provided by the National Honey Board:

- Honeybees must tap 2 million flowers to make one pound of honey.
- A bee will visit an average of 50 to 100 flowers during one collection trip.
- A hive of bees flies more than 55,000 miles to produce one pound of honey.
- An average worker bee produces one-twelfth of a teaspoon of honey in its lifetime.
- Bees have been producing honey for 10 million to 20 million years.
- Finally (though you may not care to know this), honey is the alchemical result of flower nectar mixed with bee spit.

Name that Nickname
